PLUCKY DAVE.

The boy stood on the burning deck,
Whence all 'cept he had fled.
The flames that lit the battle's wreck
Shone 'round him, o'er the dead.

ON THE FOURTH let no boy or woman omit their bangs.

QUESTION by the cheap joker on the Fourth—"Oh, say, can you see?"

* * *

INVESTIGATION as to the death of a Mr. Haberkorn shows that he was likewise troubled with tuberculosis.

WE EXPECT to see this town deserted by its police. They will go to Europe to escape the income-tax.

* * *

THE FOURTH is a bad day for the Caves and the Rossers, but they can at least cheer for the starry portion of the old banner.

* * *

DAVID B. HILL is getting into mighty good company. We observe that an Ohio McKinley club has made him an honorary member.

* * *

"I DO NOT believe that I can get anything there," says the thirsty man, looking at an open bar, "because it doesn't seem to be closed."

* * *

PHŒBE COUZINS says it was a Couzins who discovered America, and not a Columbus. That woman will be quarreling with the queen of Sheba next.

* * *

MR. GILROY says that as a private citizen Mr. Croker has a right to go where he pleases. Well, now, Mr. McKane is a privater citizen than Croker is, and he can't.

* * *

"NOBODY," says the Wine and Spirit Gazette, "ever heard of the saloon as an organized political power until prohibition sought to suppress it." Here is food for thought. Even the worm of the still will turn.

TWENTY MEN of a western Coxey army were drowned in an effort to expedite their movement on Washington. Not a name of the party was known, and probably not a tear was shed for them. They made twenty holes in the water, and the next moment they were as totally gone as if they had never lived. And that is Coxeyism large and small.

THE ANNUAL ARTICLE telling you how to keep cool appears in all the newspapers. It has nothing new, but its reproduction is attended with hard work and a fevered brain. Perhaps the best way to keep cool is not to read it; but a still better way would be for the toiling editor not to write it. Let this editor be merciful to himself and thereby merciful to his readers.

EXISTING PROOF.

Mammy Washington—"Doan' yo' lie t' me, yo' hyppercrit' chile! I smell 'baccah-smoke, shuah as yo' am born."

THE GREATEST CURE YET.

A CROCKER HEIR got four hundred thousand dollars for keeping sober five years, and at the end of another five years of sobriety will get four hundred thousand more. We don't know of any gold-cure that goes ahead of that. Organize temperance societies of that kind and in ten days we shall be such a nation of teetotalers that the professional reformers will have to go to work to get a living.

VIRGINIA IN THIS CENTURY.

A PAPER in Lynchburg, Virginia, urges an ordinance for that town which shall keep commercial travelers from visiting it. To be entirely consistent it should bar the town against all strangers, since, like the travelers, they pay no taxes and build no houses, though they may be obliged to patronize the local hotels. And then the rest of the United States should build a wall around itself and bar out Lynchburg.

OH, NO!

HELEN GOUGAR says Miss Anthony is a hoodoo to the cause of woman's rights, and invites her to step aside and let a younger woman take her place. There is something so dastardly in that proposition that a mere man would never be guilty of it. Suffrage with Miss Anthony retired, after her long agony in behalf of suffrage, would be the rankest injustice. She has won the victory and she must have the lioness's share of the glory.

GREAT PEACE OR GREAT WAR.

MR. TURPIN of France has given his native land a gun that will shoot twenty-five thousand shots a minute, and would probably with a fair chance wipe out the German army in a quarter of an hour. Happily, however, one inventor provides against the contingencies created by another, and Germany has several kinds of bullet-proof coat which would discourage any destructive in the world. The methods of the close of the century are very destructive or very safe—you can guess it out for yourself.

SOME SULTANS.

WHEN A SULTAN dies the first question relates not necessarily to the woman at the bottom of it, but to the individual, probably of the other sex, who killed him. Abdul Aziz of Turkey was choked to death by somebody, and there is doubt as to the cause of the sudden departure of Muley Hassan of Morocco, who is succeeded by a son of the same name as the unfortunate Turk. It is surprising that these royal murders should occur in this century, but there is compensation in the thought that there are many rulers who ought to be killed who still survive.

HE SHALL GNASH HIS TEETH.

J. A. MAGEE of Winnipeg, Manitoba, writes us that the men of his country are "athletes who will never be annexed, but if it comes to a fight are not afraid to face a nation that is rapidly degenerating into two classes, paupers and fools." It hurts us to be called names like that; but we could stand it if Mr. Magee hadn't previously stated that he had paid for and read the Judge five years. Of several million persons he is the poorest scholar we have, and when Uncle Sam annexes his mean old country he shall be pitched into the outer darkness, blarst his tarry toplights!

THE LATER RUNYMEDE.

THE KING JOHN of this period is the universal man. This man is no longer all-powerful, however. He has compromised and conciliated in behalf of the ballot for many western women, and there is a fair prospect that he will concede the ballot in due season to all the women of this government. The sex have called him down and presented their magna charta, and he must sign to-day or to-morrow. This is progress, whether the change is wholly wise or only partially so; and on this independence day every woman should swing her bonnet and cheer her loudest cheer for the banner that will presently wave o'er the land of the free and the enfranchised slave.

THE END OF HIS TETHER.

SHE had married a young Englishman. He had come over to New York with credentials both as to bank-account and reputability in addition to the usual ones of near relationship to titles; had wooed her in her own home, had married her from her own church, and now she was taking him, by easy stages, to view the beauties of her own country. This sounds fanciful to absurdity. But she was the right sort of American girl and he was the right sort of Englishman, and it did not occur to either of them that the girl ought to have dowager approbation ticketed upon her, any more than her trunks covered with continental labels, or that she ought to call those same trunks boxes.

Yet she lived until last month, in the year of our Lord and international marriages 1894, in Washington square, and its conservative denizens were at her marriage. All of which shows that the girl's parents and the man's parents had something else to leave their children than the usual patrimony.

They had visited a great many eastern cities, had done Boston and Philadelphia with much patriotic enthusiasm on the girl's part and, possibly, vicarious enjoyment on the man's. It is not particularly pleasant for an Englishman to go over the scene of English blunders and be expected to glow with warm feeling in the room where the Boston tea-party was born. Every second building in Boston seemed to be memorable as a place where the British used a meeting-house for dancing in or otherwise misbehaved themselves. This particular Englishman came finally to conceive a violent hatred for the father of his country. Washington letters and relics and balconies from which Washington addressed the populace seemed to abound from Massachusetts to Virginia. He suppressed, however, owing to the newness of his marital relations, all his inward sarcastic comments on the volume and extent of Washington's correspondence and the diversity of rivers he seemed to have crossed, and the girl took him daily to more places of historic interest, monuments to soldiers and museums. Nothing was omitted from his education.

In Baltimore, owing to their inadvertently procuring a guide-book thirty years old, they had to scour the streets to find spots to become patriotic over. One day an old colonial mansion with much bepillared veranda and balcony caught their eyes.

"Now, that must be some place of note," the girl observed, standing still and gazing reverently upon it. The guide-book, on investigation, revealed nothing concerning anything on the whole street.

"What do you think it is?" she asked. The Englishman replaced the book in his pocket.

"Washington lived in it," he replied grimly, "and that's the balcony from which he addressed the mob. Do you think," he added with increasing gloom, "that Washington could see a balcony like that and not get on it and address the mob?—and that," fiercely, "is the library window where he sat — whenever he was not posing on an iron horse — inditing letters, one for every square mile in the States, and I should like to smash every pane in it!"

And the girl perceived that one may over-educate even an Englishman.

Freddie—"I heard ma say you had your powder on."

A PLAUSIBLE EXPLANATION.

SON—"I simply can't get this lesson."

FATHER—"Don't give it up, Thomas Remember that General Grant's great successes were largely due to the fact that he never knew when he was licked"

SON—"Then he must have worn a board in the seat of his trousers, same as Billy Brown does."

DOUBLE ENTENDRE.

"OH, JOHN," sighed Mrs. Simpson, "another of those lovely expeditions is going to start for Alaska in a week, and what an excellent opportunity it would be for me to go!"

"I see," replied John; "you probably have a fur-in-view."

POP-I-TY boom! Pop-i-ty boom!
'Rah for the fourth of July!
The eagle's loud screams bother our dreams,
Fire a toy cannon—and die—
Oh, fire a toy cannon and die!

Day when our fathers stepped on the tail,
Tail of the Britisher's beast!
Why, Hagenbeck's show is painfully slow
Since lion-taming really has ceased—
Oh, lion-taming really has ceased!

Daughters and sons, daughters and sons,
Colonial sires and dames,
You're bad as small boys for making a noise
Shouting your pedigree's claims—
Yes, shouting your pedigree's claims!

Patsy and Fritz, Henri and John,
This is the day to lie off,
Or walk in parade, bravely arrayed,
Americans all on the Fourth!
Yes, Americans all on the Fourth.

Pop-i-ty boom! Pop-i-ty boom!
Fireworks and picnics and speech.
The damage that's done with unloaded gun
Remember—and then let him screech!
Yes, 'rah! Let the big eagle screech!

WANTED THEM TO ENJOY LIFE TOO.

LITTLE MABEL (one of a family of seven) recently went to visit an aunt, where she evidently had a very good time. The morning after her return she was unusually silent at breakfast, and noticing her pre-occupation her mother inquired, "Well, Mabel, what are you thinking about?"

To which the little maid replied with a sigh of deep satisfaction, "Oh, I'm so glad that my children will have plenty of aunties and uncles!"

. . . Suddenly, to his horror, a large portion of the log detached itself from the parent stem and, in the shape of a big snake, evidently ready for dinner, made straight for the toothsome spectator. The naturalist withdrew to his base of supplies, some thirty yards away, seized his gun and considered the situation. The snake was approaching rapidly; flight was impossible. So he stood his ground and put a charge of heavy shot square into the reptile's brain. The snake recognized that this was his cue to die, and he proceeded to do so in a manner that left no room for criticism. He took seven hours to finish the scene, dying at the rate of six feet an hour.—Rochester Democrat.

Cook's Imperial. World's Fair "highest award, excellent champagne; good effervescence, agreeable bouquet, delicious flavor."

Colonel Oates looked at him with emotion. He considered him as the venerable father of the income-tax; as a heavy man weighing three hundred and twenty five pounds; as the man who wound up the cuckoo clock; with a fine career behind him; sixty inches round the waist. Then, as he heard him pound the white-house mahogany and declare that he was —— if he knew what to do, his hearer burst into tears over the folly of a nation which refused to be saved.—Evening Sun.

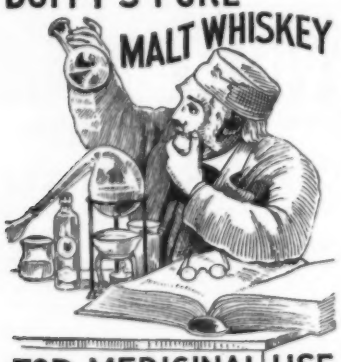
DUFFY'S PURE MALT WHISKEY



FOR MEDICINAL USE
NO FUSEL OIL

This is the time of year when there is a chill in the atmosphere, malaria in the air, and when coughs and colds are painfully prevalent.

YOU CANNOT AFFORD TO NEGLECT A COLD, and you should take the best known preparation for it. Nothing which has ever been discovered has equaled Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for counteracting the first approach of any cold, cough or malarial symptoms. It is for sale by druggists and grocers universally, but care should be exercised that none but Duffy's is secured. Send for our illustrated book.

In view of the great interest felt in this country in the coming international yacht races, in which our champion Vigilant is to contend in foreign waters against the best boats in Europe, LESLIE'S WEEKLY has sent abroad its special photographer, Mr. Hemment, who will follow the Vigilant in all her races and furnish us with pictures from week to week.

Mr. Hemment will also send us pictures of the Yale team from the time they sail on the New York until they have ended their contest with Oxford. These pictures will be a complete pictorial record, and will be of surpassing interest. Mr. Charles H. Sherrill, the well-known Yale athlete, who was largely instrumental in securing the arrangements for the Oxford-Yale contest, will furnish the letter-press. No other paper will approach LESLIE'S WEEKLY in the attention that it will devote to American sports in foreign countries.
